DUDLEY H. ASBELL, AN AGED RESIDENT, DIES EARLY TODAY

Dudley H. Asbell, 81, a resident of Brunswick practically all of his life, passed away at the City Hospital early today.

Mr. Asbell had been in ill health for a number of years and he became seriously ill at his home, 2425 Wolf street, last week and was carried to the hospital Saturday for treatment.

For a long numbers of years Mr. Asbell was employed at the local freight office of the Atlantic Coast Line, and he was well known by many local railroad men and other friends. He was retired several years ago.

Funeral arrangements, in charge of Mortician Edo Miller, have not been completed, pending the arrival of relatives. He is survived by several nieces, some residing elsewhere, and it is expected most of them will come here to attend the funeral.
